Purely Business!

The columns of a newspaper represent a cash value. No publisher can afford to give advertising "notions" free any more than a merchant can give over his counter free gifts of dry goods or shoes. A newspaper is a legitimate business concern. Its columns are its stock in trade and advertisements made to be paid for, no matter in what part of the paper they appear.

We Knew We Had a Good Thing in the Stock of Goods

We bought by electric light a few days since. There is no such clap-net clothing advertisements in vogue just now that we refrained from saying very much about the purchase. We simply called the public's attention to it by telling them to look at the display of these goods in our windows and note the prices on them. We knew we would sell some of them. The warm weather left a doubt as to selling a great many now. The doubt is dispelled. Since the day we opened this purchase and placed them in our windows our store has been crowded with customers anxious to secure these unheard-of bargains. We advise our friends who contemplate buying Fall Suits and Overcoats not to let this opportunity slip. It is only once in a long time that circumstances arise that enable merchants to secure first-class clothing that can be sold for less money than the cheaply gotten-up stuff that is flooding the market just now.

ONLY A RUMOR.

Where Did Friend Perry Capture This Piece of Misinformation, Anyway?

In The Manchester Signal of this week, under the heading "Ohio Notes," appears this:

Rumored that Thomas A. Davis of Mayville is to come into possession and be Manager and Editor of The Portsmouth Tribune.

This surely is news—to Mr. Davis.

The fact is Mr. Davis was never in the good city of Portsmouth but once in his life, and that on the occasion of the great Hanna-Thurston meeting on October 3rd.

True, he called at The Tribune, to pay his respects to Colonel Valjean, whom he has known a long while and whose friendship he esteems most highly.

Likewise, he paid a fraternal call at The Blade, and received most courteous treatment at the hands of the gentlemen met there.

Then he complimented himself by spending a few minutes on the speaker's stand in the Courthouse yard, being obliged, by the irrevocable timetable of the C. and O., to hasten his departure without seeing as much of the beautiful city and its generous people as he wished.

The Ohio river is generally falling, and at some upriver points it is getting decidedly low. Printers, like other people, have to eat—sometimes. That is, if they can get the material. But they can't get the material without money—unless someone gives it to them. Now, if you owe this Printer, he will gladly accept a few potatoes, a bushel or two of potatoes, or most any old thing that comes from the farm—and will give full credit at market prices. See?

GOVERNOR BRADLEY.

He Will Tell the County Judges To Protect Turnpikes from Raiders.

A Frankfort dispatch says Governor Bradley will issue a proclamation in the next day or two to County Judges in counties where the state has interests in turnpikes, directing them to take steps under the Anti-mob Law to protect turnpike property.

The Sinking Fund Commissioners held a meeting at which the subject of disposing of the big interests of the state in turnpike stock was considered.

At this meeting a resolution was adopted stating that if County Judges who will be called on by Governor Bradley to protect the tollgates from the raiders fail to call the Governor will be asked to call out troops to guard the gates till all the state's interests are disposed of.

Governor Bradley has appointed Colonel W. W. Baldwin, the Mayville "Turnpike King," to vote the stock of the state at the meeting next week at Lexington of the Directors of the road and county officers for the transfer of the Mayville and Lexington Turnpike, which was been sold to some of the counties through which it passes for $85,000.

NAPKINS.

Good worthy weavings of purest flax. No guess work. To own linens from this store is to know that nobody owns better. That means we sell the best all-linen Linens made. A sweeping statement but we have the goods to substantiate it. Our buyers gathered a napkin bargain this month. Linens every where have an interest in it. The price for the quality is the lowest we know. For $1 25 a dozen substantial Scotch Damask Napkins, full seivage, grass bleached in a large line of patterns, 24 inches square. For 90c a dozen fine snow-white Damask Napkins from Scotland, plump 22 inches square. Plenty of pretty patterns. $1 50 would be a fair price.

TOWELS.

Whatever else the Tariff did—and it's blamed as well as praised—it has raised the price of linens in this country—raised them already in other stores and must raise them proportionately here—after a little. Get-ahead folks won't care, however, for they'll have a year's towel supply from the lot we offer today. For 12c a Scotch Bleached Huck Towel, Barley weight. Will stand lots of wear. Heummed, 22x40. Affords ample drying surface. They have found willing takers at 20c. Every housekeeper is interested in this offering.

LINCOLN AS A LAWYER.

A Relative Attacks a Story A Piece Of Sharp Practice.

Lincoln Times.

Hardin H. Wier, a relative of Abraham Lincoln, writes the following for The Times:

"Much has been said and written of the life of Abraham Lincoln, but there is a falsehood about his conduct on the trial of a cause, which is stated in some magazines and by some of his biographers, and has found its way into at least one law book.

"The story, as related, is this: Lincoln was defending for murder a man named Armstrong. The evidence against the defendant was strong. The witness whose testimony bore hardest upon him swore that he came to the witness stand at 11 o'clock at night and he saw the blow struck by the light of the moon, nearly full. Here Lincoln handed to an officer of the court an almanac, and told him to give it back to him when he should call for it in the presence of the jury. It was an almanac of the year previous to the murder. Mr. Lincoln made the closing argument for the defense, and in the words of Mr. Lamont, 'In due time he called for the almanac and easily proved by it that at the time the main witness declared the moon was shining there was in fact no moon at all, but black darkness over the whole scene. In the roar of laughter and undignified astonishment succeeding this apparent demonstration, court, jury and counsel forgot to examine that seemingly conclusive almanac and let it pass without question concerning its genuineness.

"Now this story is well enough for novellists to use, as has Dr. Engle's in his novel, 'The Grayson,' but that it should find its way into a law book is an utter absurdity.

"In the first place, Lincoln was a man of high professional honor, and would not have been so unscrupulous, even to save the neck of a client. But waiving this question, does not every lawyer know that the State's attorney would have been careful to examine the almanac before allowing Mr. Lincoln to read from it?

"Now the fact about the introduction of this almanac as related by a lawyer, who was then a law student and of course an interested spectator at the trial, was this:

"Lincoln was to prove the fact that the moon was not up at a certain hour of the night on which the murder occurred for the purpose of contradicting a witness. Lincoln produced the almanac and stated while he thought that all probability the court would take judicial notice of it, that he wished as a matter of precaution to offer it as evidence. He, as is customary in all trials, handed it to the Commonwealth's Attorney, and his assistant, and they, with unusual care, raised the question of its correctness, and sent for another almanac. The messenger returned with the statement that there was no almanac in the Clerk's office; the murder occurred in 1857 and the trial in 1859. Some one then said there was an almanac of 1857 in the office of the County Judge, which was in the court house. Some person immediately brought it to the prosecuting attorneys, who examined it, compared it with the almanac introduced by Mr. Lincoln and found they substantially agreed.

"Lincoln then called the attention of the jury to the almanac, and the court remarked that any one might use it in the argument. Sheriff Dick took charge of the almanac, and Lincoln, to impress the jury, took it from that official and used it in his argument. This is not an unusual occurrence.

"Lincoln's forte as a lawyer was before a jury, although I have seen in the Illinois reports several cases in which he appeared as counsel before the Supreme Court of Illinois. He argued and won a case before that tribunal which Judge Burnett and myself and before Judge Edwards in a street case."

THE PRACTICE

Of the Bureau of American Republics Publishing

Advertisements in Its Official Publications Condemned by Trade Journals.

Attention of Congress to Be Called to the Matter—McKinley in His Message Will Devote More Attention to the Issue Than Has Been Given Hitherto.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The practice of the bureau of American republics in publishing advertisements in its official publications against which considerable complaint has been made by the trade journals of the country, will be called to the attention of congress at its coming session. The trade journals complain of the practice as an unfair competition on the part of the government.

The latest cause for irritation is a recent publication by the bureau entitled "Commercial Directory of the American Republics," which will be two volumes of about 2,500 pages each. It is estimated that the advertising contained in the bulletin of the bureau and in the Commercial directory will amount to $30,000.

The practice of canvassing for advertisements for the bureau publications was originated by the former head of the bureau, Mr. Clinton Furbush, and has never been legally prohibited. It is defended on the score of necessity, the appropriation for the bureau being less than its expenses.

The power plant of the U. S. Electric Lighting Co. took fire early Friday morning. The lights in the factory and the firemen succeeded in getting the flames under control. The building is badly gutted and a large portion of the machinery damaged. The loss will not exceed probably $30,000.

The president in his message will, it is expected, devote attention to the Alaska that has been given to the big territory heretofore since its purchase. It is known that the executive will recommend speedy legislation to secure the best possible government for Alaska and that he will also take occasion to point out the difficulties which the people are under and will urge that something should also be done to protect the property of the government.

THE CONSULATE

At Havana to Be Guarded Against Possibilities.

Daily Distributions of Rations to the Matanzas Reconvertedos.

Foreign Extended to 60 Prisoners Guilty of Various Crimes.

Matanzas Reconvertedos.

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—The tale reported to have contained dynamite which was found by a man subsequently arrested by the private watchmen of the American consulate building Wednesday afternoon, near the door of the consulate, is closed in official circles as being nothing more than a joke. From Thursday there will be a daily distribution of 3,000 rations instead of 1,000 among the reconvertedos at Matanzas. The daily distribution of 3,000 rations will be organized. Several sugar estates near San Fernandez and other places have been recovered by the Spanish from the insurgents. The latter lost several men and had several taken prisoners.
